The USPTO publishes patent applications at two-month intervals from the date of filing. date. The USPTO will delay the publication of an application if the inventor or applicant has not responded to a notice to file within six months from the date of the notice or if 90 days from the date of referral to the agency. There are no provisions for acceleration of the publication of patents from the filing date or 90 days from the above "Date of Referral".
If an inventor delays a response to a notice to file, the USPTO may delay the publication of the recommendation to the inventor of "invention" or "invention".
